LANCASHIRE & YORKSHIRE RAILWAY

The LYR was a small but busy system of around 600 route miles. Although the company operated recognised main line services between major cities such as Leeds and Manchester, the LYR was not a main line in the sense that the Midland or LNWR were main line systems. Instead, the company worked its services over a complex web of inter-connected routes, including the Fylde lines, which were jointly-owned in conjunction with the LNWR. Other joint lines included the South Yorkshire Joint line (SYJ), Axholme Joint (with the NER) and Methley Joint (with the NER and GCR).
